IMPORTANT SPRING BOOKS

A BELGIAN CHRISTMAS EVE

By ALFRED NOYES

Being "Rada" rewritten and enlarged as an Episode of the Great War. Beside lengthening the play itself, Mr. Noyes has added a Dedication, a long Prelude and an Epilogue, three of the best things he has ever written on war subjects. The scene—a Belgian cottage on Christmas Eve; the characters—German soldiers, a Belgian mother and child, and a half-witted schoolmaster, quoting the philosophers while the noise of carousing soldiers is heard outside. Four illustrations. Cloth, 12mo. $1.00 net. Ready March 4th.

PAINLESS CHILDBIRTH

By MARGUERITE TRACY and MARY BOYD

Freiburg experience in "Twilight sleep" and its extension to America. The one authoritative book on this subject by those who first gave general publicity in America to the successful development of painless childbirth. Fully illustrated. Cloth, large 12mo. $1.50 net. Ready March 18th.

The MAN of IRON By RICHARD DEHAN $1.35 net

Almost uncanny in timeliness, this big novel has for its essence the very causes of the Great War. Bismarck dominates its pages. His policy of "blood and iron," the Franco-Prussian War and his creation of the German Empire now battling for life are the very fabric of the story.

BEFORE the GRINGO CAME By GERTRUDE ATHERTON $1.35 net

Contains two vivid novels of the days when Spain ruled at San Francisco.

The GOOD SHEPHERD By JOHN ROLAND $1.25 net

An interesting novel and a noble book.

The SECRET of THE REEF By HAROLD BINDLOSS $1.30 net

A treasure hulk salvaged and a mystery solved in Alaskan seas.

WHAT I FOUND OUT in the House of a German Prince

By AN ENGLISH-AMERICAN GOVERNESS $1.25 net

An astonishing revelation of happenings in a German princely household that would interest women at any time, aside from its present tremendous significance. The Kaiser and his inner circle figure prominently. Six English editions within two weeks of publication.

SCHOOL HYGIENE By PROF. LEO BURGERSTEIN $1.00 net

How to make school-houses hygienic and children healthy by a world authority.

SIR JOHN FRENCH By CECIL CHISHOLM $ .50 net

An intimate biography of the Commander of the British forces.

WHAT WOMEN WANT

By BEATRICE FORBES-ROBERTSON HALE $1.25 net

Olive Schreiner, Ellen Glasgow, Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman, and Mrs. Catt all praise this book.

STULTITIA By A FORMER GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL $1.00 net

The Folly of our attitude toward national defense and its result by one who knows.

WHAT the MOTHER of a DEAF CHILD OUGHT TO KNOW By JOHN D. WRIGHT $ .75 net

Entertaining New Fiction

Robert W. Chambers's Big Adventure Story

Who Goes There!

By Robert W. Chambers, Author of "The Reckoning," "Cardigan," etc.

This great big gripping story of love and adventure in the European war zone has not appeared serially. It is a thrilling pen picture, vivid and human, of one of the most daring missions ever undertaken in war or in peace. It glows with the delicate subtle charm never lacking in the delightful romances of this incomparable writer of historical fiction. It shows Chambers at his best; the master writer of romantic fiction.

Nine full page illustrations by A. I. Keller. $1.35 net

THE HAUNTED HEART

By Agnes and Egerton Castle, Authors of "The Pride of Jennico," etc.

The story of a great love into which comes suddenly a terrible misunderstanding that seems at one moment to shatter all the ideals and hopes of a lifetime. This situation and its solution is the theme of a novel of great strength, perhaps the strongest and most vital of all the successful novels of these two talented collaborators.

Illustrated by C. H. Taffs. $1.35 net

YOUNG EARNEST

By Gilbert Cannan, Author of "Round the Corner," "Old Mole," etc.

Disappointed in a youthful love affair Rene Fourmy abandons a promising career and takes refuge in London. Here he has many new and interesting experiences in his attempt to reconstruct his very unsatisfactory existence. A splendid character portrayal of a man who would deny himself no experience that would lead to a better understanding of life. $1.35 net

RED POPPIES

By Margarete Münsterberg, Author of "Anna Borden's Career."

The haunting memory of a glorious vision of color—a field of red poppies—sends Peter Loring to Europe in search of an inspiration by which he hopes to paint his masterpiece. The bohemian life of the art centers fascinates him, and his vision fades. Then comes Romance renewing his vision and developing a love story of singular charm. $1.25 net

THE LITTLE MISSIONER

By Nina Wilcox Putnam, Author of "The Impossible Boy," etc.

The delightful romance of a dear little girl who longs to become a missionary. In the midst of her preparations to leave home to carry out her plans, Mary Watts suddenly comes face to face with some "home missionary" work of great importance. The story sparkles with wit and humor and much homely philosophy throughout. $1.30 net

THANKFUL'S INHERITANCE

By Joseph C. Lincoln, Author of "Cap'n Dan's Daughter," etc.

Here again is Joseph C. Lincoln with another of his delightful Cape Cod tales. Thankful Barnes, after considerable investigation, establishes a boarding house down on the Cape. The house is reputed to be haunted but Dan Cupid flits around among the boarders and neighbors with so much self-confidence that the ghosts never get a chance, and romance takes the lead in good old Lincoln style. Ready in June. Illustrated. $1.35 net

New Novels of Romance and Adventure

THE MAN FROM HOME

By Harry Leon Wilson

When "The Man From Home" was playing with William Hodge in the title role, night after night the "capacity" houses showed conclusively that the authors of this stirring American drama had struck the key note of the popular taste. Mr. Wilson has not novelized the play, but he has written a delightfully human story founded upon the play. It is as bright and breezy and full of humor as the play itself and it is sure to be one of the season's successes. Ready in April. Illustrated. $1.35 net

THE GIRL AT CENTRAL

By Geraldine Bonner, Author of "The Emmigrant Trail," etc.

The finding of the body of a young girl a hundred miles away a few hours after she had taken tea with her mother at her own home mystifies the whole community—until the telephone operator at the central office discovers a single clue. This leads to others, and the unraveling of the tragedy not only results in its ultimate solution but it uncovers a charming romance, unusually original, and decidedly different. An adventure story well worth while. Ready in April. Illustrated. $1.30 net

THE PRINCESS CECILIA

By Elmer Davis

Hungry for adventure Sam Riddle becomes secretary to an Eastern Sultan who had been a classmate at college. As ruler, the Sultan reverts to type and becomes a plotting, intriguing pirate. Riddle has fallen in love with a beautiful, and mysterious princess at the palace. The Sultan, seeing a rival, determines to marry the princess by force. From this moment it is war to the finish between the Sultan and Riddle. The ending is dramatic indeed and amply fulfils the promise of the opening chapters of this splendid story of adventure. Ready in April. Illustrated by C. H. Taffs. $1.30 net

THE MYSTERY OF LUCIEN DELORME

By Guy de Tremond

Two mysterious murders in Paris strangely involve an innocent man because he is heard to relate a dream in which he has seen a similar crime committed. Finally released, he resolves to solve the mystery by the aid of the unusual psychic powers he possesses. Then follow a series of the most original and exciting experiences. A wide awake mystery story of unusual cleverness. Illustrated. $1.25 net

C. O. D.

By Nataliesumner Lincoln, Author of "The Lost Despatch"

The circumstances surrounding the mysterious murder of a young man, just on the eve of his marriage, opens a way to an investigation that involves many prominent Washington families. Further complications arise when it is discovered that an important government despatch is missing and suspicion points to the dead man, who is also suspected of having been a spy and blackmailer. Events follow rapidly in which the letters "C. O. D." figure prominently. Not until the last page of the last chapter does the reader discover the solution. The dénouement is as startling as it is unexpected. Illustrated by Charles L. Wrenn. $1.30 net

FELIX TELLS IT

By Lucy Pratt, Author of "Ezekiel"

You are sure to love Felix. He is only ten, but in these few short years of his life he has formulated a philosophy that is delightful in its originality. At a suggestion from his father that Macaulay was only eight when he wrote a history, Felix decides to write a book himself. He takes for his subject "The Nature of Fathers and Mothers" and very frankly he tells things "just as they are." That startling conclusions must follow is plainly inevitable, and fathers and mothers are sure to find much food for thought in this little volume that might have been written by their own little boy himself.

Illustrated with many Pen and Ink drawings by Gordon Grant. $1.25 net

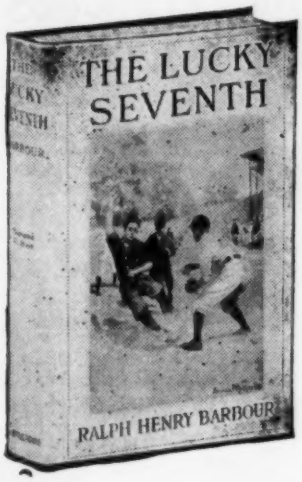
The Newest Books for Boys



The Lucky Seventh

By Ralph Henry Barbour

Author of "A Brother of a Hero," etc.

This is a high school story; the first in the series to be known as "The Purple Pennant Series." As the title suggests, baseball plays a prominent part in the story but there are numerous other adventures that have nothing to do with baseball or athletics of any kind and serve to make the story exceptionally strong and interesting.

Illustrated in color by Norman P. Rockwell. $1.30 net

Finding His Stride

By John Harbottle

Author of "The Luck of Laramie Ranch."

A vocational story for boys. The hero, a western boy, is just finishing his studies at college, when his father's death calls him home to take charge of a contract for water supply involving many thousands of dollars. A crooked director, furious because he cannot get control of the company, tries to ruin the job. Many exciting events follow and make up a corking story in which grit and determination, coupled with a sterling character, win under tremendous difficulties.

Illustrated in color by A. Spaenkuch. 1.30 net

The Star of Gettysburg

By Joseph A. Altsheler

Author of "The Sword of Antietam," etc.

The fifth in the series of Civil War stories. Harry Kenton and all his old friends appear. The three great battles, Fredericksburg, The Wilderness and Gettysburg, which enter into the story are described with faithfulness to historic detail and no sectional bias mars the picture of American valor in this most critical period. A splendid, stirring story with the author at his best.

Illustrated in color by Charles L. Wrenn. $1.30 net

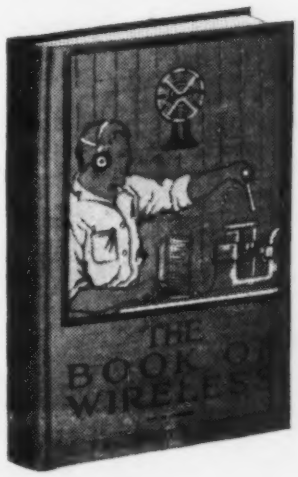
The Guns of Europe

By Joseph A. Altsheler

Author of "The Guns of Shiloh," etc.

The first in The World War Series—three connected romances dealing with the war in Europe. Telling the thrilling adventures of a young American who enlists with the Allies and sees active service from the start. A terrific air battle takes place in which two German Taubes nearly win a victory. Thrilling from start to finish.

Illustrated in color by Charles L. Wrenn. $1.30 net



The Book of Wireless

By A. Frederick Collins

Author of "The Book of the Stars."

Wireless telegraphy has become one of the most necessary sciences of the present day. And not only is it an indispensable commercial asset—it is one of the most fascinating studies ever discovered, for professional and amateur alike. Mr. Collins is an expert in wireless construction and in this book he tells the secret of building a station at little cost, and gives the amateur worker just the advice necessary to follow for success.

The Diplomacy of the War of 1914

The Beginnings of the War

By

Ellery C. Stowell

There have been many hasty studies of the diplomatic causes of the War of 1914, but this, the first of three books that will present the diplomacy of the war from its inception until the final settlement, when that shall be arrived at, should take its place as the most complete, authoritative, impartial study of the diplomatic negotiations preceding the outbreak of war.

President Charles W. Eliot's

The Road to Peace

This study of the present war, its probable results and the best means of preventing future wars is of paramount importance not only from the position of the author, but from the big constructive way in which he handles the subject. Cloth. $1.00 net.

Clarence W. Barron's

The Audacious War

"By far the most valuable work upon the great war. . . . In addition to the accuracy of the statements contained in the book, the almost encyclopædic gathering of facts, many of them new to readers on this side of the water, the book is touched with imagination. . . . A great tract for peace."—The Churchman. $1.00 net.

OUTDOOR BOOKS

A New Book by Enos A. Mills

The Rocky Mountain Wonderland

The "more exciting scenery in books," advocated by Ellis Parker Butler, has been achieved in earnest by Enos A. Mills. Wild winds, frowning precipices, roaring torrents, irresistible glaciers with yawning crevasses,—all play their parts in Mr. Mills's new book, yet the impression is equally strong of a wonderland of lofty mountains, natural parks, gemlike lakes, alpine flower-gardens, and streams full of trout. The book contains a deal of original observation on the habits of the Rocky Mountain forests and the ways of the wild folk that roam through them.

A NEW SATIRE

By the Author of

"Bunker Bean"

"Three Rousing Cheers for Colonel Ruggles"

How Ruggles, valet to the Honorable George, was lost to the American Johnnies in a game of "drawing poker" and the strange adventures that befell him among the "cow persons" of Red Gap

RUGGLES OF RED GAP

By Harry Leon Wilson

The Honorable George and the "Cow-persons."

Ruggles, late valet to his lordship the Honorable George, is the latest commentator on the life and customs of "Our America."

Nobody in Red Gap, Washington ("named after the rebel George Washington") had ever had an English valet, and Mrs. Effie expected thereby to establish forever her claims to the social leadership of "the fastest growing town in the state." Moreover, there was the impossible Cousin Egbert to reform, that degenerate person variously known to his associates as "Sour-dough," "Shellback" and "Horned Toad."

Ruggles captivates the Red Gap smart set.

"Colonel" Ruggles tells his own story of his journey to Red Gap across the great American "steppes," of his adventures with the "cow-persons" and that deadly animal the "high behind," and of his meteoric rise to be the leader of Red Gap Society, with a naiveté that is deliciously funny.

This is Harry Leon Wilson's first book since "Bunker Bean" took the country by storm three years ago. Out March 26th.

Illustrated by F. R. Gruger. Net $1.25

Ruggles en route to Red Gap

"This journey began pleasantly enough, and through the farming countries of Philadelphia, Ohio, and Chicago, was not without interest. Beyond came an incredibly large region, much like the steppes of Siberia, I fancy; vast uninhabited stretches of heath and down, with but here and there some rude settlement about which the poor peasants would eagerly assemble as our train passed through. I could not wonder that our own travelers have always spoken so disparagingly of the American civilization. It is a country that would never do with us."

A NEW NOVEL

H. L. Mencken says:

A tale indeed! It is closer to the conventional novel than anything else he has done, and yet it is full of his characteristic touches.

"VICTORY"

By Joseph Conrad

Author of "Chance," "A Set of Six," Etc.

"VICTORY" tells the romance of Axel Heyst and Lena, the girl from a travelling Ladies' Orchestra, and their strange life on the deserted South Sea island of Samburan. Cut off from civilization except for the monthly passing of a trading vessel, they live there undisturbed until the sinister descent upon the island of those ill-omened messengers of the outside world, "plain Mr. Jones" and Ricardo. Then for the first time the tenderness and pathos of this strange romance is unveiled to the reader.

¶ "Chance" was the literary event of 1914. "Victory" is unquestionably the most important announcement for 1915. In the directness of its narrative, the extraordinary power and swiftness of its action, "Victory" has those "popular" elements that "Chance" to some extent lacked, without in any way losing the subtle Conradian touches that stamp the author one of the great modern novelists. We believe we are conservative in predicting for "Victory" a sale at least double that of "Chance," the book that made Conrad known in this country.

Pierrot

Dog of Belgium

by

Walter A. Dyer

The children called him Pierrot—no name for a dog, perhaps!—but he was so clumsy and droll as a puppy, so clown-like, that they named him to suit. He lived at the little dairy farm six miles out of Brussels on the Waterloo Road. Each morning he pulled the little wagon of shining milk cans into Brussels, and back at night. To Père Jean and Mère Marie he was almost as dear as another child.

Then came August 1914 and the Great War. Pierrot was commandeered by the Belgian army to help defend his country. How he was taught to help draw a machine gun; how he fought, was wounded, and escaped; how he returned to those who loved him to comfort them in their misery—this is the little story that Mr. Dyer tells. Illustrated. Net $1.00

"Pierrot has been a good soldier," said Granpère.

Love Letters of a Divorced Couple

By WILLIAM FARQUHAR PAYSON

Author of* "DEBONNAIRE," *etc.

"Affectionnately, your ex-wife, Sybil," was the way she signed her letter on the first day of her new found freedom. She felt no animosity toward Kenneth—she wanted him to know that. And so began this amusing correspondence that continued from all corners of the globe, until it came to an abrupt close in the discovery that, after all, their "incompatibility" was—something quite different. It is an original little book, brimful of humor.

Decorated. Net $1.00

The Idyl of Twin Fires

By WALTER PRICHARD EATON

A romance centering round an old fashioned, dilapidated New England farm house and its rejuvenation.

It is a delightful tale, full of humor and homely genuine sentiment with many practical touches that will appeal to all back-to-the-landers, actual and incipient—which in this day and age includes about everybody. Running through the narrative is the thread of a charming and tender love story. Illustrated by Thomas Fogarty. Net $1.35

The Rediscovered Country

By STEWART EDWARD WHITE

Author of* "THE LAND OF FOOTPRINTS," *etc.

The diary of Mr. White's hunting trip in the last unexplored part of South Africa, including his famous account of how he was charged by four lions at once. The new country he found is as large as British East Africa—the hunting finer than to be found anywhere in the world. It is a thrilling story of the last land to be explored in the habitable world.

Cupid in Quarantine

THE CHALK LINE

By ANNE WARWICK, author of "Victory Law," etc. 12mo. Cloth. $1.25 net.

By a clever adjustment of circumstances at Shanghai, four people (three men and a woman) find themselves shut up together without escape, and their relations to one another make the situation extremely piquant. The tangle of their affairs is unraveled with great dexterity and with a keen insight into the varieties of love as the outcome of characters noble or mean.

A Tale of Passion

THE GOOD SOLDIER

By FORD MADOX HUEFFER, author of "The Fifth Queen," etc. 12mo. Cloth. $1.25 net.

An unusual psychological story of a little four-square coterie, composed of an Englishman and his wife and an American couple sojourning in Europe. Humor, pathos and tragedy mingle in the account of their nine years' friendship, and the ending of it is unexpected and most artistically told.

"Chesterton has conceived the cleverest variant of Sherlock Holmes we have yet seen." —NEW YORK EVENING POST.

The WISDOM of FATHER BROWN

By GILBERT K. CHESTERTON, Author of "The Innocence of Father Brown," etc.

"Tales of crime and discovery, clues and false leads and all the rest of the thrilling material which will make any normal human being sit up and keep on sitting up long past the proper hour for bed. Mr. Chesterton deserves a rousing cheer—in fact, three rousing cheers—for giving us another series of real and fine detective tales."

Discontented, Take Warning!

A PILLAR OF SALT

By HORACE W. C. NEWTE, author of "Sparrows," "The Home of the Seven Devils," etc. 12mo. Cloth. $1.35 net.

"Mr. Newte has drawn a true picture and one that should serve as a warning to all women who find kindness and decency monotonous. No woman ever leaves a good husband for a better lover. The change always marks a descent. What the author has to say about the London feminists, their ambitions, their methods, and the unfortunate influence that they exert over silly young women, is as true as it is entertaining."

THE SILVER SPOON

By KEBLE HOWARD, author of "Lord London," etc. 12*mo. Cloth.* $1.35 net.

The vicissitudes of a young Oxford man, seeking a literary career in London, is the theme of this novel. He is the dupe of unscrupulous business men, the victim of a scheming landlady, and the drudge of a boys' school; but having been "born with a silver spoon in his mouth," he challenges Fate to do her worst, and seeming obstacles become but stepping-stones to a great achievement.

A SOUL ON FIRE

By FRANCES FENWICK WILLIAMS. 12*mo. Cloth.* $1.30 net.

This book presents a new theme in fiction. The heroine, a young girl, is the direct descendant of a supposed witch. By the power of suggestion, exercised by unfriendly forces, she is persuaded that the witchcraft of her ancestor is reincarnated in herself. This leads her into many otherwise inexplicable undertakings. The marvels of modern psychology play a part in solving apparently unconquerable difficulties, and the book has an ending which is cheerful, and, at the same time, totally unexpected.

WILLIAM J. LOCKE'S NEW NOVEL

JAFFERY

By the Author of "The Fortunate Youth," "The Belovèd Vagabond," etc.

Jaffery Chayne is a war-correspondent, just back in England from the wilds of Albania, where the sudden death of a friend has left him encumbered with the care of the widow, Liosha, a native Albanian. She suddenly arrives at the country house of the friends with whom Jaffery is staying, interrupting the house-party. The story of Liosha's life is extraordinary and touching and arouses the pity of her new English friends. Jaffery's great-heartedness leads him to conceal the perfidy of a friend and to risk his own reputation in the eyes of the woman he loves. The story, written in the author's happiest vein, works out to a perfectly satisfactory ending, and will readily be conceded one of the brightest and most whimsical tales Mr. Locke has yet written.

The Heart of Uncle Terry

By Charles Clark Munn

Illustrated by W. L. Howes

12mo. Cloth. Decorated Cover. Price, Net, $1.25; Postpaid, $1.40.

You remember UNCLE TERRY, one of the great novels that have swept the country and touched the hearts of scores of thousands. The same quaint and lovable philosopher is with us in another book, even wiser, and no less kindly than before. In the story of love and adventure which develops, Charles Clark Munn has put his whole soul into producing his best novel in a field in which he is the acknowledged master.

When I Was a Boy in Belgium

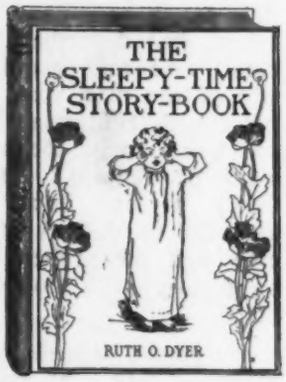
Sixth volume of "Children of Other Lands Books," all of which are entirely independent.

By Robert Jonckheere

Illustrated from photographs. 12mo. Cloth. Price, Net, 75c.; Postpaid, 85c.

Mr. Jonckheere, the first refugee to write a book, is beginning life anew in this country, and he tells entertainingly how Belgian boys and girls pass their childhood, describing home and school life, games, duties, food, clothing, and everything our children like to know.

KING ALBERT



The Sleepy-time Story-book

By Ruth O. Dyer

With Frontispiece by Alice Barber Stephens and Fifty-four Pen-and-Ink Illustrations by Bertha Davidson Hoxie. Decorative End-Leaves and Title-Page. Large 12mo. Cloth. Special Binding.

Price, Net, $1.00. Postpaid, $1.10.

Intelligent mothers, and others having the care of young children, have learned better than to spoil the restful sleep of a child, and probably exert an unfortunate influence upon his disposition and character, by tales of ogres, dark woods, and savage beasts. The simple nature-stories in this attractive book are the prescription of an expert for all such cases. Using familiar objects, they, with words adapted to a lulling tone of voice, will hold the attention of a child until refreshing drowsiness comes to bring healthful rest.

The Cry for Justice

An Anthology of the Literature of Social Protest

Edited by Upton Sinclair

Collected from twenty languages, covering a period of four thousand years. The writings of social reformers of many centuries——philosophers, poets, novelists, and others who have voiced the struggle against social injustice of every kind——have been culled to produce this anthology. The work is divided under many topics and is thoroughly indexed. Concise biographies of the authors quoted are given. The illustrations, graphically representing the expression of noted cartoonists, painters and sculptors against social oppression, are an integral and valuable part of the anthology. A volume which is unique of its kind, this anthology forms an invaluable work of reference, as well as one of general interest to the great body of serious readers who are concerned with social problems.

A Textbook of the War

FOR AMERICANS

By J. Wm. White, M.D., LL.D.

The fact that several editions of Dr. White's "Primer of the War" have been sold, and that the British rights, the rights of translation into French, and the rights of translation into the languages of all neutral countries have been separately and repeatedly cabled for, has led to this new, revised and enlarged edition under a broader title.

The Only Book that Explains Mr. Sunday

"Billy" Sunday

THE MAN AND HIS MESSAGE

By William T. Ellis, LL.D.

AUTHORIZED BY MR. SUNDAY

Tells the story of Mr. Sunday's eventful life, gives a keen analysis of his manner and methods, and contains the heart of his message, arranged by subjects, including his vivid utterances, his startling epigrams and his homely, Lincoln-like illustrations that add to his tremendously earnest appeals. Cloth, 496 pp. Profusely Illustrated, $1.50 and $1.00 net.

Life of Lord Kitchener

By F. W. Hackwood

Mr. Hackwood, with sympathy, fidelity. and a deft touch of human interest, has described the rapid rise and eventful life of the man who, by his magnificent qualities, has come to be the bulwark of Britain's confidence in her hour of greatest peril. A concise and comprehensive biography at a popular price.

Ireland: Vital Hour

By Arthur Lynch, M.P.

Here, at length, is a fearless and illuminating book, written with inside knowledge of Irish politics. The author has entered upon the work in that rare spirit of patriotism which seeks the weaknesses and the strength of the materials of which the Irish nation of the future must be built. The book is both conciliatory and unifying, and the true way of Ireland's concord with England is pointed out. Altogether an original, bold, sincere, and, above all, upbuilding book.

An Exceptional New Novel
By the Author of
"The Mystery of 31 New Inn"

A Silent Witness

By R. Austin Freeman

The ordinary mystery seems commonplace when compared with this new novel by Dr. Freeman. It is full of the thrill of perilous adventure, of fiendish conspiracy, and of hazardous attempts to ferret out a resourceful, unscrupulous criminal. Thorndyke's scientific wizardry makes him a classical figure among the great detectives of fiction.

RED FLEECE

Most Popular Story by Author of "Routledge Rides Alone"

by Will Levington Comfort

Will Comfort has so brilliantly pictured war-correspondents, old fighting men, the laboring troups of a dozen nations, American life as the average man really lives it, that he has been hailed as one of the few geniuses among all American writers, both by the press and by the solid body of his adherents who buy every book he writes. But never before has he so directly—yet brilliantly—appealed to the general body of book-buyers as in his new novel, RED FLEECE, whose hero is a charming, clean, courageous young American newspaperman, whom thousands of readers who have not hitherto followed Mr. Comfort are going to adore. He learns the horror of war, following the Russian advance into Germany, but still more he learns, from a woman with a spirit like a wave of electricity, what love can mean at its highest and biggest. Fiction Spring 1915 War

The Keeper of the Door

Ethel M. Dell

Author "The Way of an Eagle," "The Rocks of Valpré," etc.
12°. 600 pages. $1.40.

Revolves around the act of the Heroine, who puts into practice her belief that in a case of hopeless suffering, to put the sufferer out of the way is the only kind course, the effect on the physician whom she loves, and one who seeks revenge. Probably the best of this author's remarkably popular novels.

Three Gentlemen from New Caledonia

R. D. Hemingway and Henry de Halsalle

12°. $1.35.

"Cunning criminals, plots and counterplots, the Paris police, a shifting scene from cannabalistic New Caledonia to Paris dives, from the placid English country estate to the sinister little alley in Amsterdam—this is the most exciting novel published in many and many a day."

"My Heart's Right There"

Florence L. Barclay

Author of "The Rosary," "The Wall of Partition," etc.
12°. $0.75.

Mrs. Florence L. Barclay, the most popular of living authors, has here written a tender, patriotic story of the war, and the cottage homes of England, and the wives who are left behind. A glimpse is given of what a woman undergoes while the husband is in the field and of her subordination, though not without many a tug at the heartstrings, of self to country.

On the Fighting Line

Constance Smedley

12°. $1.35.

Not a story of the European War—a vivid portrayal of the every-day struggle for existence, and of the girl who has to fight her battles alone. A dramatic picture of the present and of woman's economic value, but also an uplifting love story that rings true.

Patricia

Edith H. Fowler

Author "For Richer or Poorer," etc.
12°. $1.35.

Avid for success, needy of money, the heroine is tempted to publish the letters of a diplomat with whose son she subsequently falls in love. Strong in plot, just avoiding tragedy, dramatic and virile. A rare and absorbing book, with a fine moral tone.

The Evidence in the Case

James M. Beck, LL.D.

2d Edition, with much added material and an Introduction by Hon. Joseph H. Choate.
12°. 280 pp. $1.00.

In the Oregon Country

George Palmer Putnam

Author "The Southland of North America." Introduction by James Withycombe, Gov. of Oregon.

12°. 53 Illus. $1.75.

Out-doors in Oregon, Washington and California. Some legendary lore, glimpses of the Modern West in the making, descriptions of trips along the forest and mountain trails, on foot and horseback; and with gun, rod, and camera; of the ascent of peaks, and of long canoe excursions, all replete with incidents of interest and rich in word-pictures of the glorious country traversed. The volume is beautifully illustrated from the author's photos.

Field Book of American Trees and Shrubs

F. Schuyler Mathews

16°. 120 Illus., 16 in color, and 43 Maps. Cloth, $2.00. Flexible leather, $2.50.

Mr. Mathews' former Field Books, "American Wild Flowers" and "Wild Birds and Their Music," have won him a secure place in the hearts of all nature lovers, who have found his guides an invaluable aid. This volume embraces the entire United States, and will be found to be the most thorough, authentic and simple guide to the trees and shrubs yet published.

The Art of Landscape Architecture

Its Development and Its Application to Modern Landscape Gardening.

Samuel Parsons

Fellow of the American Society of Landscape Architects. Author of "Landscape Gardening," etc.

8°. 48 Illus. $3.50.

Mr. Parsons, to whom was intrusted the greater part of designing and building Central Park, New York City, and who designed the great 1,400 acre park at San Diego, Cal., has written a most important book setting forth the underlying principles of the practice of landscape gardening, and to sustain the exposition of these principles he cites passages from at least one hundred well-recognized authorities in various ages and countries.

An American Fruit Farm

Its selection and Management for Profit and Pleasure.

Francis N. Thorpe

8°. Illus. Probable price, $2.50.

The biography of any well-conducted fruit farm is a chapter in the history of success. The author's fruit farm has yielded that success; a careful perusal and application of the author's recommendations may enable other cultivators to achieve a similar success.

KING ALBERT'S BOOK

A Tribute to the Belgian King and People from over two hundred representative men and women throughout the World—Princes, Statesmen, Diplomatists, Ecclesiastics, Scholars, Scientists, Men and Women of Letters, Artists, Composers, etc.

From Hall Caine's Introduction:

The immediate object of this Book is to offer a tribute of admiration to Belgium, on the heroic and ever memorable share she has taken in the war which now convulses Europe, and at the same time to invoke the world's sympathy, its help and its prayers for the gallant little nation in the vast sorrow of its present condition.

"Never before, perhaps, have so many illustrious names of contributors been inscribed within the covers of a single volume."

The Illustrations

The twenty-eight illustrations by the foremost living artists include mounted color-plates, half-tones, duo-tones, and a photogravure portrait of King Albert.

For the Belgian Fund

All publishing profits from the sale of the book will go to the Belgian Fund.

A Story of the Great War

LITTLE COMRADE

By BURTON E. STEVENSON

Author of "The Marathon Mystery," "The Mystery of the Boule Cabinet," etc.

What more thrilling setting for a tale of mystery, love and international intrigue than the first weeks of the great war?

A young American surgeon leaving the Congress of surgeons at Vienna finds himself caught in the net of suspicion incident to German mobilization. At the Belgian border the situation is as "ticklish" as can well be imagined. How his "little comrade" joins him and how they are caught in the maelstrom of the Belgian campaign furnishes the starting-point of a remarkably stirring story.

THE SPRING OUTLOOK.

THERE is no denying that the book business—like nearly every other business for that matter—stumbled in the first uncertain days of the war. A glance at the spring lists given in this issue of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY shows clearly the extent to which the book trade has regained its natural stride. This resiliency is only one phase of the general steadying tendency manifest in every line of American business. The happy faculty of laissez-faire which allows our country to loll comfortably unarmed in the face of a world war has also aided the general recovery of business by relegating the war to the somewhat objective and impersonal position of a spectacle. Meanwhile America goes about her customary tasks and diversions, and instead of rendering tribute to necessity through reduced profits, as her English cousins are forced to do, bids fair to grow fat through the virtual stoppage of a large portion of the rest of the world's trade. We hear of railroads buying new rolling stock, of exports far exceeding imports, and for the first time since 1913 Great Britain last week shipped gold to this side of the Atlantic.

In England conditions are not so easy. In the English book trade there is still a pronounced tendency to "go slow." The trade is also to a certain extent disorganized through the numbers of its members who have enlisted.

The book business itself bidding fair to get soon on a normal basis again, the next natural question is: how will books themselves be influenced by the war? War books in the exclusive sense are already dropping back out of prominence. It will be interesting to see whether the American people will grow as war-weary as the English did toward the close of the Boer war, when to say a novel dealt with that subject was tantamount to asking for its rejection. The censors have this time been indirectly a boon to the trade, for the less they tell us of what is happening in the area of hostilities, the more people will be thrown back upon books for information.

It seems probable that the travel book—rather overworked of late, in any event—will now be given a rest for a while. Books of the dilettante, art-for-art's-sake variety are also apt to get "lost in the shuffle" temporarily. History shows that in times of national cataclysm, of concerted action, the individual sinks into the mass. Are we to infer that the inevitable increase in interest in international problems will lessen the stream—so strong of late—of social and sociological books?

And fiction? Indications thus far disprove any general revival of the historical romance. H. G. Wells' spring novel is anything but a war book, in fact its sub-title might be taken as typical of what people are seeking in fiction this year, "A holiday." Joseph Conrad's "Victory," Chesterton's "Father Brown," Conan Doyle's new Sherlock Holmes story, Henry Harrison's "Angela's Business," Hugh Walpole's "The Wooden Horse," Oliver Onions' "Mushroom Town," Ernest Poole's "The Harbor," Booth Tarkington's "The Turmoil"—to name but a few of the many good spring fiction titles—no one of them deals with the war. In England now the cry is for "good novels" to lift the grim pressure of war. Said an English publisher recently: "It is more than likely that there will be a shortage of novels in this country [England]. . . Now, above all others, is the time for a novelist."

Wars for national and especially for racial existence deepen the well-springs of a people's life, and this should mean a forthcoming genuine revival of poetry. But while the warring nations are the most likely to have a literary renascence, a long war may also act as a boomerang, exhausting the finer and more subtle qualities in a nation's life.

THE last Australian Bookseller gives a well-phrased note of warning regarding the prospective sale of "war books," as pertinent here as there. As the Bookseller says, during the first months of the war everything on the war "went." But that time is past; the public is getting, if not bored, at least discriminative. It behooves the bookseller now to make just as careful a selection of war goods as of other stock. The first rather frothy tide of hastily concocted topical works, good as they may have been, considering the time available for their writing or compilation, are no longer salable. The war, or rather public opinion of it, has moved past them. Wise publishers and booksellers made hay while the sun shone and so tided over a discouraging year. Now are coming along—with belated or newly planned topical books—a growing number of serious works by informed writers, works of permanent importance, many of them readable as well as authoritative, as cogent next year as this. One class of books will leave many "stickers" unless the bookseller is unusually energetic and fortunate: the other class may sell more slowly but it won't stop selling—not for some years anyway. In short, as the Bookseller concludes, "the bookseller's job is to sort those war books out. Pick for sale; pick for permanent sale; pick."

We print elsewhere the official text, only now made public by the Department of State, of the President's proclamation and of the British Order in Council officially setting forth Anglo-American reciprocity in respect to copyright. To the lay reader, these official documents will at first sight seem a legal puzzle, for the President's proclamation dated Jan. 1st, 1915, antedates the British Order in Council made Feb. 9th, 1915, though effective from the beginning of the year, and it might be inferred that previous to 1915 no reciprocal relations existed. Moreover, in spite of the prominence given to mechanical music relations in the beginning of the British Order in Council, it is comprehensive of all copyrights. Most of this is red-tape formality. As a matter of fact, American and English copyrights have been protected under previous arrangements in the other country, with some doubts as to details of musical and dramatic copyright which are cleared up by this inclusive action. It may be further explained that, as already stated in these columns, the arrangements for the proclamation and order were made in the latter part of 1914 and the Order in Council which was to have been issued at the turn of the year was deferred, doubtless by press of more urgent business, and was therefore made retroactive. The gist of it all is that the United States and Great Britain now grant full privileges under the condition of their copyright to the citizens of other countries, with the exception that the British self-governing dominions, viz.: Canada, Newfoundland, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, are excluded under the terms of the British Act of 1911 and must legislate or arrange for themselves.

TEXT OF PRESIDENT'S PROCLAMATION AND BRITISH ORDER IN COUNCIL IN RESPECT TO ANGLO-AMERICAN COPYRIGHT.

GREAT BRITAIN.

COPYRIGHT ORDER IN COUNCIL.

At the Court at Buckingham Palace, the 3rd day of February, 1915.

Present:

The King's Most Excellent Majesty.
Lord President, Mr. Secretary Harcourt.
Viscount Knollys, Mr. Arthur Henderson.
Lord Chamberlain, Sir William Macgregor.
Lord Justice Banker.

Whereas, By a Proclamation of the President of the United States of America, dated the 9th April, 1910, the benefits of the United States Act of 1909, entitled "An Act to amend and consolidate the Acts respecting Copyright," were extended to the subjects of Great Britain and her possessions, but no provision was made therein for the protection of the musical works of British subjects against reproduction by means of mechanical contrivances:

And whereas, His Majesty is advised that the Government of the United States of America has undertaken, upon the issue of this Order, to grant such protection to the musical works of British subjects:

And whereas, by reason of these premises His Majesty is satisfied that the Government of the United States of America has made, or has undertaken to make, such provisions as it is expedient to require for the protection of works entitled to copyright under the provisions of Part I of the Copyright Act, 1911:

And whereas by the Copyright Act, 1911, authority is conferred upon His Majesty to extend, by Order in Council, the protection of the said Act to certain classes of foreign works within any part of His Majesty's dominions, other than self-governing dominions, to which the said Act extends:

And whereas it is desirable to provide protection within the said dominions for the unpublished works of citizens of the United States of America:

Now, therefore, His Majesty, by and with the advice of His Privy Council, and by virtue of the authority conferred upon him by the Copyright Act, 1911, is pleased to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follows:

1. The Copyright Act, 1911, including the provisions as to existing works, shall, subject to the provisions of the said Act and of this Order, apply:

(a) to literary, dramatic, musical and artistic works the authors whereof were at the time of the making of the work citizens of the United States of America, in like manner as if the authors had been British subjects;

(b) in respect of residence in the United States of America, in like manner as if such residence had been residence in the parts of His Majesty's dominions to which the said Act extends.

Provided that—

(i) the term of copyright within the parts of His Majesty's dominions to which this Order applies shall not exceed that conferred by the law of the United States of America;

(ii) the enjoyment of the rights conferred by this Order shall be subject to the accomplishment of the conditions and formalities prescribed by the law of the United States of America;

(iii) in the application to existing works of the provisions of Section 24 of the Copyright Act, 1911, the commencement of this Order shall be substituted for the 26th of July, 1910, in subsection 1 (b).

2. This Order shall apply to all His Majesty's Dominions, Colonies and Possessions, with the exception of those hereinafter named, that is to sav:

The Dominion of Canada.
The Commonwealth of Australia.
The Dominion of New Zealand.
The Union of South Africa.
Newfoundland.

3. This Order shall come into operation on the 1st day of January, 1915, which day is in this Order referred to as the commencement of this Order.

And the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury are to give the necessary Orders accordingly.

ALMERIC FITZROY.

THE following is the official text of the President's proclamation, dated January 1, 1915, and of the British Order in Council, effective as of Jan. 1, 1915, though actually made February 9, 1915, both of which have just been made public in Washington by the Department of State for the first time:

COPYRIGHT—GREAT BRITAIN.

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas, It is provided by the Act of Congress of March 4, 1909, entitled "An Act to Amend and Consolidate the Acts Respecting Copyright," that the provisions of said Act, "so far as they secure copyright controlling the parts of instruments serving to reproduce mechanically the musical work, shall include only compositions published and copyrighted after this Act goes into effect, and shall not include the works of a foreign author or composer unless the foreign state or nation of which such author or composer is a citizen or subject grants, either by treaty, convention, agreement, or law, to citizens of the United States similar rights";

And whereas it is further provided that the copyright secured by the Act shall extend to the work of an author or proprietor who is a citizen or subject of a foreign state or nation, only upon certain conditions set forth in section 8 of said Act, to wit:

(a) When an alien author or proprietor shall be domiciled within the United States at the time of the first publication of his work; or

(b) When the foreign state or nation of which such author or proprietor is a citizen or subject grants, either by treaty, convention, agreement, or law, to citizens of the United States the benefit of copyright on substantially the same basis as to its own citizens, or copyright protection substantially equal to the protection secured to such foreign author under this Act or by treaty; or when such foreign state or nation is a party to an international agreement which provides for reciprocity in the granting of copyright, by the terms of which section 8 (b) of the Act of March 4, 1909, now exists and is fulfilled in respect to the subjects of Great Britain and the British dominions, colonies and possessions, with the exception of Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, and Newfoundland, and that such subjects shall be entitled to all the benefits of section 1 (e) of the said Act, on and after January 1, 1915.

In Testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the City of Washington this first day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and fifteen, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and thirty-fourth.

[SEAL]

By the President:
WOODROW WILSON.
W. J. BRYAN,
Secretary of State.

ARBITRATION IN PUBLISHING DISPUTES.

[In a recent issue of the "Bulletin" of the Authors' League was the following well-reasoned and soft-spoken presentation of the benefits of arbitration in publishing disputes, either between publisher and author or publisher and publisher, as opposed to litigation. In a prefatory note, the editor of the "Bulletin" says: "Whereas the Authors' League has never been opposed to the spirit of arbitration, members have heretofore been advised not to accept the arbitration clause which is frequently included in the form contracts of publishers. The secretary recently had occasion to discuss the question with Mr. Frederick A. Stokes, who was later invited to meet the members of the Council and Executive Committee in order to acquaint them with his views on this important subject. His arguments are embodied in the following article, which received the endorsement of all the members present at the meeting."—Ed. P. W.]

When litigation rather than arbitration is urged upon the author and the publisher, it seems to me like placing daggers in the hands of two schoolboys who might otherwise settle a dispute with soft gloves and with the head of the school as a referee. The sort of justice likely to be got in the courts seems to be well described by Mr. Dooley when he says, "Give me no justice—lave it for him that wants it." But my feeling as to arbitration has not to do with authors and publishers solely, but with all those having business dealings together.

Arbitration is rapid and soon over. The delays of the law are almost as notorious in America to-day as they were when Dickens wrote "Bleak House." In an eloquent speech on this subject Bourke Cockran said, "Justice delayed is justice defeated."

The cost of litigation can be almost indefinitely expanded. The cost of arbitration is little or nothing, and why? Because friends of the disputants can always be found willing to sacrifice their time and thought rather than to bring on the horrors of war in the courts.

I will not say arbitration is more peaceful, but it is, at any rate, less unfriendly than litigation, which tends almost as much as physical combat to disclose some of man's least admirable traits.

Arbitration is far less likely to be based on technicalities than litigation, and much more likely to result in settlement on the merits. If there be legal technicalities for the author which might be protected in court there must be also similar technicalities for the publisher, and it would seem as though this possible objection must be equally strong for each side and should therefore cancel itself.

The principle of arbitration is becoming extended constantly throughout this country and elsewhere. In Australia it is, I believe, even compulsory in certain cases. In America it is becoming more and more the custom to arbitrate labor disputes rather than to fight them out in other ways. The New York Stock Exchange virtually requires its members to resort to arbitration when litigation would otherwise be necessary between them. The Produce Exchange has a similar requirement, but goes further and provides facilities for the arbitration of disputes between its members and outsiders. The Chamber of Commerce goes further still, and I will go into its methods in this respect later on in connection with a definite suggestion which I hope may be found worth considering.

In an effort to solve the conundrum as to why the Authors' League opposes arbitration, I put the matter before an author, a member of the League, who has had much experience in other fields connected with our mutual interests and has written "The Author's Desk Book," which has been approved by the Executive Committee because of his unquestioned neutrality. He writes to me as follows: "You ask me regarding my opinion of the arbitration clause which in one form or another appears in the present contracts between publisher and author, and when I write you what I do, I realize that I am taking a position which is contrary to that taken by my fellow-members of the Authors' League. In other words, I most emphatically believe that such a clause should exist. The relations between author and publisher are so much closer than those which obtain in other business dealings that anything which tends to disturb them affects both parties to the contract, and when it becomes necessary to resort to law to settle any point in the contract, then those relations are absolutely broken and permanently destroyed."

In order to get the opinion of a lawyer, who is himself an author of at least a dozen books, I called on Mr. ——. I expected to get from him the author's side of the matter from the legal point of view, and I asked him to tell me frankly the legal disadvantages involved for the author in arbitration. He answered emphatically that he knew of none, and went on to say that, on the contrary, the administration of the law in this country to-day is more reprehensible than ever before. Moreover, he believes it likely to become still worse, so that there will be, as he expressed it, "something very like a revolution to provide a remedy." He does not believe that this remedy will come through lawyers. He is a member of two bar associations and on the committees attempting to provide reform, but he finds that the tendency among lawyers in this regard is, as he puts it, "merely to putty up the cracks" instead of working on the foundations.

He went on to say that in his opinion the advantages for authors in arbitration over litigation are greater than those for publishers. He referred to the fact that many publishers employ counsel on the basis of an annual retaining fee, so that it does not increase their expense for fees if they have an unusual amount of litigation. He pointed out also that many publishers are corporations, so that expense incurred by them for litigation is divided among more or less numerous stockholders, whereas the author usually is forced to defray this heavy outlay individually.

As for my own house, we have not been insistent upon any one form covering arbitration, but have used in our contracts the customary clause to bring it about. Publishers do not limit themselves to authors when they have disputes, but sometimes condescend to "take on" other publishers. That we do not desire arbitration which is restricted to arbitrators chosen in any particular method, but would welcome it by any fair-minded body, is proved by the fact that some years ago we had a dispute with a prominent London publishing house which might have resulted in litigation. We suggested that the matter be arbitrated, and we went even to the extent of accepting as arbitrators the English Publishers' Association. I may say, incidentally, that our position was upheld completely by this body, and that our opponents not only accepted the decision cheerfully, but paid what resulted from it and have been our good friends ever since.

Mr. Frank H. Dodd was for three years a member of the Arbitration Committee of the New York Chamber of Commerce and he has given me much interesting information about the work of this committee. Its head is Mr. Charles L. Bernheimer, a true philanthropist who is an enthusiast over arbitration and has devoted a large part of his time and means to furthering it generally, visiting Chambers of Commerce in other cities than New York in his efforts to bring about more widespread arbitration. The New York Chamber of Commerce has a list of about two hundred arbitrators among whom the disputants can choose. The cost of arbitration resulting is nominal, the arbitrator receiving only $10 a day for his services, which I ask you to compare with $10 an hour for the referee. The Chamber provides its rooms, etc., without charge. The only additional cost to the contestants beyond the one just mentioned is that involved for the stenographic notes. Compare this with the vast sums required in litigation in the courts for costs, for printing briefs, giving bonds, etc. However, either party to the arbitration may be heard through counsel if desired.

Here is a body of the highest standing doing great public service and possessing, in addition to the advantages just described, a fund of experience in arbitration. What has been the result? Not only have many cases been settled without the evils attendant upon litigation, but with mutual satisfaction on the part of the contestants. Numerous instances exist where Mr. Bernheimer has received letters from both sides thanking the committee for its great work and expressing complete satisfaction with the result. This even happened in one case where one side claimed $5,000 and the other admitted a claim of only $500.

In the hope that the privilege of turning to the New York Chamber of Commerce would be available for us, I requested, through Mr. Dodd, the Arbitration Committee's permission to suggest the use of their standard clause. This permission having been granted, may I suggest that, in future contracts between American authors and publishers, this clause be used? It has been drawn to meet all possible objections as to the choice of arbitrators, and reads as follows.

"All disputes that may arise relating to this contract shall be submitted to arbitration, under the rules for the time being of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York. In the event of the failure of the parties to agree upon arbitrators, the Committee on Arbitration of the Chamber of Commerce is hereby authorized to select three impartial persons from the 'Official List' of arbitrators, with the same force and effect as if their names were herein inserted."

THE BOOKSELLING CRISIS IN DENMARK.

THE war, according to an article in a recent issue of the Cassell house organ, Book Talk, interrupted what is practically a revolution in the methods and conditions of bookselling in the little peninsula. Just what effect the war will have on the course of events is not yet clear, but it will probably only postpone developments a little.

The great publishing firm, the Gyldendalske Boghandel Nordisk Forlag, of Copenhagen, is responsible for the largest production of books in Denmark; some years ago it incorporated the most important of its competitors. Other publishers exist, but their trade is comparatively insignificant. According to the conditions laid down by the Boghandlerforeningen (Union of Booksellers), which includes both publishers and booksellers as members, the booktrade in Denmark has hitherto been monopolized by some three hundred booksellers, the publishers only being allowed to supply books to members of the union. The Gyldendalske Boghandel has come to the conclusion that such a restriction of the sales is intolerable. This firm demands free trade, and it looks as though the union would lose its power, for the Gyldendalske Boghandel wishes to withdraw its membership, and to establish more bookshops all over the country.

The first cause of friction was the competition arising with some new publishing houses described as "illegitimate," as they are outside the Union. They sell large editions of books at absurdly low prices direct to the public, using puffing advertisements and pretentious prize competitions. Their campaign has made it evident that there is a large book-buying public which cannot be reached by the organized bookseller, but whose patronage the union booksellers naturally wish to secure. The Gyldendalske Boghandel feels that the conditions laid down by the union place a restriction on its members in their endeavors to reach the thousands of homes of the people.

The publisher takes the view that Danish booksellers are not only booksellers; the sale of stationery and fancy articles forms a large part of their business. Their monopoly is therefore unreasonable. The Danish publisher is convinced he must find a thousand tradesmen who will handle his books as a side line. Three hundred shops are too few for a population of 2,500,000 inhabitants. Books must be on sale in all the largest villages and on newspaper stalls at railway stations. They must come to the people by means of colportage dealers if the people themselves do not go to the shops for them.

This would be holding the knife at the Danish bookseller's throat, for bookselling without stocking the goods of the Gyldendalske Boghandel would be like their own "Hamlet" with Hamlet left out. The bookseller has therefore to make his choice between two courses—agreeing with this powerful publishing house and tolerating an increased competition, or giving up books and selling solely stationery and fancy articles. They find it a hard case. No doubt the greater number of them will choose the first way out of the difficulty. Publishers and booksellers are still negotiating, but it is improbable that they will come to terms.

SALE OF THE BRAYTON IVES LIBRARY.

The great collection of valuable objects of art made by Gen. Brayton Ives, who died last year, together with the rare contents of his library, will be placed on sale in New York early in April, according to an announcement made by the American Art Association.

The illuminated and other manuscripts include examples executed in the thirteenth, fifteenth, sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. Some of them are: Brevirum Ordinis Fratum Prædicatroum S. Dominici, a manuscript of the thirteenth century on vellum of English execution; Horæ Beatæ Marie Virginis of the fifteenth century, on vellum, and with fifteen full page miniatures, and the remarkable Office de la Vierge Maria, executed by Nicholas Jarry.

Other ancient works are: Francesco Colonna's "Hypnerotomachia Poliphili," in folio brown levant morocco, by Cuzin, with the beautiful woodcuts, printed at Venice, by Aldus Manutius, 1499, and considered the masterpiece of the Aldine Press; the Edition Princips of Euclid, 1482.

Grolier and Padeloup bindings are: The Leon Techener-Benedetto Maglione-Robert Hoe copy of "Acta Scitu Dignissima Docteque Concinnata"; several specimens of binding by Padeloup, including Regnier's "Satyres et Autres Œuvres, Londres, chez Jacob Tonson, 1733," and Fenelon's "Les Aventures de Telemaque."

The eighteenth century French books include: Montesquieu's "Le Temple de Gnide, Nouvelle Edition," plates engraved by Le Mire after Eisen, red levant morocco, by Trautz-Bauzonnet, Paris, 1772; Longus's "Les Amours Pastorales de Daphnie and Chloe," plates engraved by Audran, bound by Cuzin, Paris, 1718; Du Buisson's "Le Tableau de le Volupte," bound by Thibaron-Joly, Paris, 1771; La Fontaine's "Les Amours de Psyche et de Cupidon," in a binding by Bozerian, jeune, Paris, 1797; Dorat's "Fables Nouvelles," by Dupre, A la Haye, 1773; Quardan's "Les Graces," plates after Moreau; Margaret of Navarre, "Les Nouvelles," plates engraved by De Longueil, 3 vols., bound by Thibaron-Joly, Bern, 1780; De Favre, "Les Quatre Heures de la Toilette des Dames," plates after Le Clerc, bound by Chambelle-Duru, Paris, 1780.

Of the English and American first editions may be mentioned the first "Vanity Fair," 1848, in wrappers; Stevenson's "Pentland Rising," 1866, in wrappers; Cowper's Poems, Byron's "Hours of Idleness," Swinburne's "Laus Veneris"; Tennyson's "Poems by Two Brothers," in a Cobden Sanderson binding; Shelley's "Adonais"; "Queen Mab" and "Zastrozzi"; Keats's poems, 1817; Rossetti's "Sir Hugh the Heron," 1843; Browning's "Pauline," 1833; Dickens's "Boz" and "American Notes," Hawthorne's "Fanshaw," Poe's "Al Aaraaf," Walton's "Compleat Angler"; Spenser's "Faerie Queene," 1590, and Rossetti's "The Germ."

Among the other first editions are two dozen Thackeray items, a dozen Stevensons, a dozen Byrons, two dozen Swinburnes, nearly fifty Tennysons, twenty Shelleys, a dozen each of Rossetti, Browning and Mrs. Browning, three dozen Dickenses and many of Longfellow, Whittier, Lowell, Irving, Hawthorne, Scott, Ruskin, Wilde, Gautier, Verlaine, Merimee and De Maupassant.

The collection also includes many prints, engravings and porcelains.

MAKING A "COMPLETE" BOOK.

SOME forty years ago the New York Tribune printed these directions for the making of a "thorough" book. They are as pertinent today as then.

In the first place, the title page ought to contain a perfectly intelligible title, giving comprehensively the subject of the book; the author's name should be followed by such works of his own as are related to this one; the reverse of the title page may well contain a statement as to the number of copies disposed of, and the dates of the several editions, if these editions have been materially changed. There should be a preface giving so far a history of the book that follows as the work may demand. That is the private explanation which everyone has a right to ask of the author. The table of contents should be analytical, so that one could determine quickly the scope of the book, and should be followed by a list of illustrations and maps, giving the name of the draughtsman. The headlines should, if possible, give the contents of the page below, and if the work is a history or biography, the current date should be supplied in the headline. Side notes to historical works and to logical treatises are real additions. Small clew maps let into the text are very serviceable, and ought to be repeated whenever reference is required, instead of being used once only, forcing the reader to turn back. Then notes ought to be so divided between mere references and annotations that the former should be given at the foot of the page, and the latter at the end of the volume. Tables, charts and all such furniture as serve to render the work clearer should be used freely, but one of the most useful appendices is to be found in a bibliographical list. This, we contend, ought to be as regular a part of the book as the index. Every work which the author has consulted in preparing his book should be duly entered, especially the magazine articles for which he has had to hunt; then, if the work is a biography of a literary man, all his writings should be duly noted, with their dates, and the pages of reference to the biography itself. The topical index is so generally regarded as a necessary part of a book that reference to it would seem superfluous, yet it is frequently omitted, to the great disadvantage of the reader. In a word, we think it is not only a matter of justice to the reader, but should be one of professional pride to the publisher, that every book dealing with facts should be thoroughly furnished, so far as its scope permits, with such apparatus as may make it at once independent of other books and an index to other books.

COPYRIGHT NOTES.

CURIOUS CASE OF INFRINGEMENT.

A CASE of alleged copyright infringement, remarkable enough in itself, and illustrating some unsatisfactory phases of American copyright procedure, lay in the Federal Court of Kansas through half of 1913 and the major part of 1914. The details of the case are briefly as follows: W. W. Jacobs is the author of a story, "Twin Spirits," copyrighted both here and in England and published in both countries in 1901 in a collection of short stories, entitled "Light Freights." In May, 1913, Short Stories published a story by James Fraser, of Edwardesville, Kansas, entitled "Aft-a-Gley," whereupon Mr. Jacobs at once received numerous communications from people in this country, Canada and England, calling his attention to the fact that this story was almost word for word the same as his story, "Twin Spirits," only the proper names being changed. When questioned, Mr. Fraser wrote back an absolute denial of any plagiarism, professing himself "stunned" by the similarity, and stating that he had not only never heard of Mr. Jacobs' story, but that his own story had been evolved with much labor on his part, being rewritten several times.

In view of the remarkable similarity of the two stories, Mr. Jacobs refused to accept this statement and placed the facts before the Federal authorities of the District of Kansas. The editor of Short Stories and the Authors' Society collaborated with Mr. Jacobs in pushing the case. After nearly a year, or on May 14, 1914, to be exact, a letter was received from the Chief Inspector of the Post Office Department, stating that directions had been given to the inspector who had the matter in hand to expedite the case as much as practicable. Finally, in answer to a letter written on November 25, 1914, the editor of Short Stories was informed that the United States Attorney could not take the matter further. The letter from Francis M. Brady, Assistant United States Attorney, read in part: "The case against Mr. Fraser was fully presented to the grand jury at the October term at Leavenworth, Kansas, and the grand jury failed to return an indictment. We still have the papers in this office, and I have some doubts as to whether it would be advisable to present the case to the grand jury again."

TRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

THE NEW YORK BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE.

THE twentieth annual meeting of the Booksellers' League will be the feature of the March dinner to be held at the Hotel Brevoort on Wednesday evening next, the 17th inst. The Celtic members of the League as well as all lovers of Ireland will be permitted to appear in regulation regalia, green ties and green socks. The annual report of the Board will be read followed by the election of President for the ensuing year, and six members of the Board of Managers. During the canvass of the ballots Mr. George F. Parker, author of "The Life of Grover Cleveland," will give a talk on the romance of book collecting during the past forty years, and Mr. Donald Lowrie, author of "My Life in Prison," another guest of honor, will also address the members.

BOOKSELLERS' ASSOCIATION OF SAN FRANCISCO AND BAY CITIES.

HOWARD M. BOYS, Sec'y-Treas., of the Booksellers' Association of San Francisco and Bay Cities, 5-7 City Hall avenue, San Francisco, asks us to give notice that the Booksellers' Association of San Francisco and Bay Cities extend a most cordial invitation to all Book Publishers, Booksellers and Members of the American Booksellers' Association who contemplate visiting the Exposition during 1915 to be present at the Association's monthly meetings which are held on the second Thursday of each month.

Correspondence is invited with the Secretary of this Association relative to any further information desired.

OBITUARY NOTES.

WILLIAM HENRY JONES, proprietor of the drug, book and stationery store at 421 Main Street, Stamford, Conn., died at his home in Stamford on February 20, in his 58th year, as the result of complications developing from the amputation of a toe. He is survived by his wife and a young son.

PERSONAL NOTES

HORATIO R. HARPER, formerly of the house of Harper Brothers, slipped and fell Wednesday night when alighting from a car, receiving a concussion of the brain.

MISS MAY PERKS, formerly with J. B. Greenhut's book department, has become manager of the book department at Abraham & Straus, Brooklyn, in succession to Latimer Willis, resigned.

J. R. MAYERS, who formerly handled the advertising of Grosset & Dunlap, has joined the staff of the A. L. Burt Company in the same capacity. He announces that he is "inaugurating an advertising campaign" for them.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES

IRVIN S. COBB is planning to return to bullet-dodging at the front.

"WHEN I WAS A BOY IN BELGIUM," by Robert Jonckheere, the sixth volume in the "Children of Other Lands Books," will be issued by Lothrop, Lee & Shepard on April 1.

LAIRD & LEE are bringing out this spring "The Modern Motor Car," a book for owners, students, repairmen, salesmen, and others, by H. P. Manly.

"THE EAGLE OF THE EMPIRE," by Cyrus Townsend Brady, will be put forth by the George H. Doran Co. on April 1. It is a historical romance dealing with Napoleon and Waterloo.

"WHO GOES THERE!" a "gripping" war romance, by Robert W. Chambers, will be published within a week or ten days by D. Appleton & Co. "Thankful's Inheritance," another of Joseph C. Lincoln's Cape Cod tales, is also forthcoming.

A NEW BOOK BY DR. ARMGAARD KARL GRAVES, author of the much discussed "Secrets of the German War Office," was recently published by McBride, Nast under the title "Secrets of the House of Hohenzollern."

THE VIR PUBLISHING CO., Philadelphia, will issue soon "The Marvels of Our Bodily Dwelling" by Mrs. Mary Wood-Allen, M.D., in which, in the form of an allegory, she sets forth the principles of physiology and hygiene to juniors.

AMONG THE SPRING PUBLICATIONS of the Yale University Press are: "Ethics in Service," by ex-President Taft; "Undercurrents in American Politics," by President Hadley, of Yale; and "Municipal Citizenship," by George McAneny—each volume consisting of a series of lectures.

ALTHOUGH A RECENT WRITER IN The New Republic sees fit to criticise Frank A. Simonds as having a "too historical viewpoint," it is nevertheless with the keenest interest that a great many readers await his "The Great War: The Second Phase," which Mitchell Kennerley will publish late in the spring.

THE COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY PRESS (Lemcke & Buechner, agents) is preparing for early publication: "Records of Civilization," a collection of historical sources, to comprise about ten volumes. The first to appear will be: "Hellenic Civilization," by Professors G. W. Botsford and E. G. Sihler.

"THE BREATH OF LIFE," a forthcoming volume of essays by John Burroughs on problems of evolution and human life, includes such suggestive titles as "Life and Chance," "The Journeying Atoms," and "The Primal Mind." Houghton Mifflin will also publish this spring a collection of letters by the late John Muir.

THERE'S ALWAYS ROOM for another golf book. Rand, McNally & Co. are issuing this spring "Pro and Con of Golf," by Alexander H. Revell. A recent Rand, McNally book that ought to be in demand this time of year with those who are lucky enough to browse south to Bermuda or Cuba is Aspinall's "Pocket Guide to the West Indies."

A BOOK FOR THE NAPOLEON ENTHUSIAST—and he's not at all a rara avis—is "Napoleon in Exile at St. Helena," which Winston is publishing this spring. This generously illustrated two-volume work represents some four years' study on the part of the author, Norwood Young, and is an informative study of that least-known period of the great Corsican's life.

H. G. WELLS' NEWEST NOVEL, "Bealby," is not pronounced in two syllables, thus, Beel-by, but Be-al-by, with plenty of accent on the second syllable. Young Bealby is in trouble because his parents want him to "take service," with Bealby asking quite naturally, "Why?" The youngster runs away from his troubles, only to encounter fresh ones. The sub-title is "A Holiday."

ONE OF THE MOST ALLURING books on mountain climbing that has appeared in many a day is Guido Rey's "Peaks and Precipices, Scrambles in the Dolomites and Savoy," published by Dodd, Mead on March 6. It is indeed difficult to imagine a man who has ever done any active tramping or climbing who would not be immensely attracted by this well-written and wonderfully illustrated quarto volume.

A. L. BURT COMPANY announces the publication of three new Juvenile series, based on the European War. The first volumes of the two leading series, The Boy Allies with the Army and The Boy Allies with the Battleships will be ready on March 15th. The first volumes of the third series, The Young Aeroplane Scouts, will be ready on April 1st. All three series (which are protected by trade-mark) are being published to retail at twenty-five cents.

THE SURVEY ASSOCIATES recently published for the Russell Sage Foundation two volumes of considerable interest to social workers, and in fact to all who are interested in the problem of "the other half" in our cities: the one a study of "Boyhood and Lawnessness" and of "The Neglected Girl"; and the other a study of "Mothers Who Must Earn" and of "The Middle West Side of New York City."

IN A STORY LIKE "TYPHOON," Conrad leaves a reader with a bewildered, storm-tossed feeling that "That certainly was some storm." On the other hand, the dominant impression of one who reads "Chance" is that he has lived for a little space among some amazingly lifelike characters. "Victory," Conrad's new novel, to be published by Doubleday, Page on the 27th, combines something of the characteristics of each of these former novels.

THE CADMUS BOOK SHOP, 150 West 34th street, New York, has been offered the following items, which they fear may be missing from some dealers stock: Goldsmith, "Vicar of Wakefield," 2d ed., 2 vols., full calf; Keats, "Endymion," first edition, full levant, by Wood; "Abeillard and Heloisa," full levant, by Sangorski and Sutcliffe; "The Copy of an Act lately passed in Carolina," 1698, full levant, by Riviere. Inquiries may be sent to them direct.

TWO NEW NOVELS are forthcoming from the Lippincott presses this month, "The Woman in the Car," by Richard Marsh, and "The Diary of a Beauty," by Molly Elliot Seawell, whose "Sprightly Romance of Marsac" won the Herald's $3000 prize. Her Southern tale of "Betty's Virginia Christmas," published last fall, is said by Lippincott's to have proved to be among the most popular of their fall publications.

THE FOLLOWING QUAINT NOTICE appeared in a British paper the morning after the German raid on Hartlepool, Scarborough and Whitby under the caption, "A Good Omen": "A singular and, it is hoped, significant episode occurred at the shop of Mr. Dalton, bookseller, in Newborough, Scarborough. One book fell from a shelf as the result of the cannonading. It was a volume on Imperial Germany."

AT A RECENT "BOOST PHILADELPHIA" DINNER in that city a number of prominent business men told of the results gained by them individually through advertising. Cyrus H. K. Curtis, of the Curtis Publishing Company, one of the speakers, said: "Our great business was started thirty years ago with $400, and I got credit for that. Now, I want to point to the moral. The big plant at Sixth and Walnut Streets is a result of advertising."

BRENTANO'S New York store is employing an ingenious yet inexpensive window display this week which is holding people before the store. The window plays up but two books, Mawson's "Home of the Blizzard" and Singer's "Big Game Fields of America," the folded illustrations in the former being especially featured. The thing that puts the "punch" into the window is a mountain lion and a panther, crouching in the foreground. The animals are not stuffed, but merely skins, roughly arranged so as to represent crouching animals.

"THE RAILWAY LIBRARY" FOR 1913, compiled by Slason Thompson (Bureau of Railway News and Statistics), like the former volumes of this annual, consists of a collection of interesting literature, most of which appeared during the year, on the subject of railways. Theodore Roosevelt, Interstate Commerce Commissioner Meyer, Charles A. Prouty, Presidents Rea of the Pennsylvania and Elliott of the New Haven, Seth Low, and W. M. Acworth are among the authors represented in the forty-two articles reprinted.

THE DEVIN-ADAIR COMPANY published this week "The King, the Kaiser and Irish Freedom," a pro-German book, by James K. McGuire. It purports to show how England has moblized the news of the world—how she destroyed Irish industries—English atrocities in Ireland—why England will never grant freedom to Ireland. It discusses the Germans in the United States—German efficiency and character—what Germany could do for Ireland—Sir Roger Casement's mission to Berlin. It also purports to show how England is lengthening the American bread line, "English atrocities in the United States," etc.

CHARLES RANN KENNEDY recently mentioned some interesting facts regarding his play, "The Terrible Meek," which kept the censors busy several years ago. Copies of this play, in which some doubt is thrown on the popularly accepted dictum concerning a soldier's first duty and certain misgivings as to the importance of empires are expressed, were sent, on its publication, to the monarchs or presidents of all the countries of the world. The book was accepted by them all, with the significant exceptions (as now appears) of King George, the Kaiser, the Emperor of Austria, the President of the French Republic, the Czar and the Queen of the Netherlands, who returned them.

"THE WILL TO LIVE," the latest novel by Henry Bordeaux to be translated into English, will be brought out this month by Duffield & Co. in a paper binding exactly the style of a regular French novel. According to his American publishers, more copies of Bordeaux's books are sold in France to-day than of any other writer. "The Edge," another February publication of Duffield & Co., is by John Corbin, author of "The Cave Man," and is a comedy of a young couple brought up in the most fashionable New York society, who, as a result of marriage and children, are forced over "the ragged edge" of their class into the life of the submerged. Duffield will also publish in novelized form "It Pays to Advertise," the successful comedy of love and business that has been running in New York this winter.

THERE IS SOMETHING STRIKINGLY SIMILAR in modern Germany standing "four-square" to all Europe and in that early militant Teuton who, nailing his ninety-five theses on the door of Wittenberg Castle, faced the world, back to the wall, with those words, "Hier stehe ich, ich kann nicht anders." There is another reason why our attention is drawn to Luther now—for 1917 will be the four hundredth anniversary of the birth of Protestantism. Since 1910 a group of scholars have been engaged in translating those vital parts of Martin Luther's writings which illustrate the various phases of the man and his work. Along with these, they are preparing an elaborate series of introductions and explanatory notes. The A. J. Holman Co. hope to make their completed work the standard edition of Luther in English. Of the ten volumes projected, the first will appear on April 20 of this year.

INSTEAD OF "BUSINESS AS USUAL," Australia apparently believes in "Business better than usual," if we may judge from the reports of the Christmas trade printed in the Australian Bookfellow. R. J. Stark & Co., of Dunedin, report a Christmas trade that broke all records, all saleable fiction being practically sold out a day or two before Christmas. J. Braithwaite, of the same city, reports business better if anything than last Christmas, all good recent novels being sold out. Propsting & Morris, of Hobart, report a record Christmas, and Watson, Ferguson & Co., of Brisbane, state that their turnover at Christmas was far in advance of expectations. Everywhere booksellers say business is "good." While the volume of Christmas business was probably greater than in previous years, however, the value was less. Fiction was booming, especially 3s. 6d. novels; inexpensive booklets sold heavily, too; the demand for higher-priced books, however, the 15s. net illustrated book and the like, was small. Among the best-selling fiction were: "The Auction Block," "Innocent," "The Wall of Partition," "The Laughing Cavalier," "The Eyes of the World," and "The Patrol of the Sun Dance Trail."

AMONG THE WORKS ANNOUNCED for this spring by T. Fisher Unwin, the English publisher, are: "The Transvaal Surrounded," an important work, by Dr. Leyds, author of "The First Annexation of the Transvaal"; "Chinese Forest Trees and Timber Supply," by Norman Shaw; "Rural Housing," by Wm. G. Savage; "Arms and the Map, a Study in Nationalities and Frontiers," by I. C. Hannah; "The British Soldier: Hero and Humorist," an intimate picture of the men fighting in France, by Chaplain E. J. Hardy; "Denmark and the Danes," by Wm. J. Hervey and Christian Reppien; "The Endless Quest," a romance of the awakening of a dreamer, by Mark Somers; "Cleared for Action," a collection of navy poems by a young Canadian, Harwood Steele; "Contemporary Belgian Literature," by Jethro Bithel, a solid work, showing the development of contemporary Belgian literature, from its beginning about the year 1880 at the University of Louvain, where a group of unruly students, of whom Emile Verhaeren was one, began the campaign for new ideals in the university magazines, to the present; "Aircraft and the Great War," by Grahame-White and Harry Harper; "Windylow," a novel, by Kineton Parkes, author of "Potiphar's Wife"; "The Great Hazard," a novel, by Silas K. Hocking; "Germany —Yesterday, To-day, To-morrow," by Charles Tower; and "Friendly Russia," by Denis Garstin, with an introduction by H. G. Wells.

IN THE CHINESE EMPIRE during the last twenty years what may be almost termed a national newspaper press has been developed of which we in the Western world know very little. In 1895 there were only nineteen native newspapers. To-day there are nearly 3000. Of these, seventy-three are published in Shanghai, forty-nine in Pekin, thirty-nine in Canton, and thirty-five in Tientsin. But though the number of newspapers in China has until late years been very limited, the Empire has always been able to boast that it possesses the oldest newspaper in the world, the Kin Bo, or Metropolitan Reporter, usually termed the Pekin Gazette, which has appeared regularly for more than a thousand years. It is published with the special object of supplying the people with news as to the acts of the government. Imperial decrees, reports from provincial governors-general, promotions and removals in the government service, the results of official examinations, and the like. It is published and managed by the Board of War in the Chinese capital. An average issue consists of ten or twelve leaves of thin brownish paper, 7½ by 3¾ inches, contained in a bright yellow paper wrapper. The pages are crudely stitched by two short twists of tough rice paper, rolled like twine, the ends passing through holes punched in the rear margins of the sheets and loosely twisted together. The title of the paper is stamped in red on the left-hand top corner of the wrapper. The inside leaves, each folded double, as in all Chinese books, give twenty or twenty-four small pages, each divided by red lines into seven columns.

BUSINESS NOTES.

EMPORIA, KAN.—The Graham Book and Art Store is reported to be in financial difficulties.

IOWA FALLS, IA.—R. R. Boozer has purchased the book, stationery and wall-paper store known as the W. L. Hanna Co.

NEW YORK CITY.—Stikeman & Co., bookbinders, at 110 W. 32d Street, recently suffered a loss by fire.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Rider Press, Inc., printers of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, last month added a bindery to their equipment.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Cambridge Encyclopedia Co. has not established a New York agency at 550 West 156th Street, as was mistakenly announced in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY some time ago.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Foundation Library Society has been incorporated, with a capital of $15,000, to do a printing, publishing and bookselling business. Anna T. Dervin, Fred J. and Henry L. Brainerd, of 225 Fifth Avenue, are the incorporators.

NEW YORK CITY.—The United Editors' Association and the Educational Society, of which Richard S. Peale is president, have filed separate bankruptcy petitions. They had offices at 225 Fifth avenue, where also the Americana Company and the Scientific American Compiling Company, the Peale concerns, against which petitions were filed on February 18, had their homes. Receivers for the two concerns are Francis L. Kollman and Rudolph E. Keller, who had been made receivers for the Americana Company.

SANTA BARBARA, CAL.—Extensive improvements are being made to the rooms of the Pacific Coast Publishing Company in the Elks' building. The stationery and book department is being enlarged, new cases installed and other changes made that will transform the appearance of the store. The stock of the Mission Book Store, recently purchased by this company, will be moved to the new store, after the improvements are finished.

TACOMA, WASH.—Walter Berg, formerly of the Cole-Martin-Berg Co., has opened a new store.

PICK UPS.

NOTICE TO PUBLISHERS.

WHY are you vainly urging us to buy
Such books as "Who Began the War and Why?"
We want some author with prophetic pen
To tell us "Who Will End the War and When!"

THE KID GOT SHUT OUT.

He was a kind hearted bookseller and he liked kids, so he stopped in front of a little boy who was sitting on a doorstep and crying softly.

"What is the matter, lad?" asked the kind hearted bookseller.

"M-ma's gone an' drowned all the kittens," he sobbed.

"What a pity! I'm awfully sorry."

"An' s-she p-promised—boohoo!—'at I c'u'd do it."

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTES.

The catalogue of Henry Stevens Son & Stiles, 39 Great Russell Street, London, W. C., England, No. 93, lists upwards of 2400 items relating to America alone, all properly classified, consisting of offerings of the less costly books in their extensive collection of Americana. It was planned to issue in the winter of 1914-15 a third part of their catalog of Rare Americana, but the disorganized condition of the English book market led them to prepare instead this more comprehensive offering of wider appeal. The general low run of prices suggests a scrutiny of the list by collectors for possible bargains and some surprises.

Index to Spring Announcements.

In this department the announcements of books to be published during the Spring are indexed under author and title, with as much information as publishers were ready to give in advance of publication. Books appearing before February 1 in our "Weekly Record of New Publications" are not included. The omission of titles of prominent publishers is only due to the fact that such publishers failed to respond to request for information.

Where binding is not stated the books are generally understood to be in cloth binding; "bds.," particularly in the department of Juvenile fiction, generally means illuminated or fancy board covers.

Artzibashef, Michael. Sanine; tr. by Percy Pinkerton; with a preface by Gilbert Cannan. N. Y., Huebsch. 315 p. D $1.35 n.

Novel was written in despair after the failure of the Russian revolution of 1907. It is not, however, political, but sociological, postulating Sanine, a moral anarchist, who deifies the natural animal instincts in his assertion of personal liberty. The Russian government confiscated the book.

Bordeaux, H: The will to live (Les Roquevillard); a novel; tr. by Pitts Duffield. N. Y., Duffield. c. 326 p. D pap. 75 c. n.

Forceful novel, in which the father of the Roquevillard family, a distinguished lawyer, interprets duty, that watchword of all the Bordeaux novels. Maurice, the son, is suspected of having stolen a sum of money, but is not willing to accuse the woman he loves, who is the real culprit. The father defends him on the son's own terms by the sheer sincerity of his belief in the family's past record and traditions. He succeeds. In the face of sorrows and misfortunes he exerts his will to live, to show that honor lies in accepting one's due place in life, not serving one's self.

Bower, B. M. [pseud. for Bertha Muzzy Sinclair, Mrs. Bertrand W: Sinclair]. The Flying U's last stand; with front. by Anton Otto Fischer. Bost., Little, Brown. c. 353 p. D $1.30 n.

The well-known people of the Flying U are here—Chip, the Little Doctor, Pink, Irish, Big Medicine, and the other boys—fighting as they think in their last ditch. A company of school teachers and farmers came to take up claims on its grazing range. Andy Green and the others in the Happy Family put in their claims first so as to surround the ranch. Their efforts to graze their cattle and keep off claim-jumpers furnish lively reading, while the escapades of the "Kid," a boy of six, assist in complicating matters.

This island in the Mississippi delta had a history from the days of pirates and slave traders. Hither comes a good-looking Northerner in search of a winter's vacation. Instantly he falls under the spell of the island, as had his friend Anderson and Anderson's pretty wife. The mystery, which includes a lone fisherman, secret slave quarters, a brooding threat in the dark, and a strange, beautiful girl, comes to an astonishing climax.

Chamberlain, G: Agnew. Through stained glass; a novel. N. Y., Century Co. c. 359 p. D $1.30 n.

On a Brazilian plain, Lewis Leighton, goatherd, can mould damp clay so that it looks a good deal like kids and birds and other live things. Lewis meets a rich American traveler and "hires out" to cook for him. They are father and son. The sophisticated father wishes to put his knowledge at his son's disposal, but the son, who becomes a famous sculptor in Paris, keeps to his own different ideas. When the father meets death on an elephant hunt, and the son has come back to his early girl-love, each feels he has won out on his own line. By the author of "Home," published anonymously.

Comedy of love and business that tells the human story of old Cyrus Martin, the great soap king, who, in pursuance of a bet, turns his idle son, Rodney, out of doors to make his own living. In the course of a meteoric business career, Rodney, aided and abetted by Ambrose Peale, the irrepressible advertising man, and by the pretty secretary, Mary Grayson, plans a great campaign. He puts "13 Soap" on the market, not without many pecuniary escapades and adventures, but with ultimate success and lots of fun.

Fowler, Edith Henrietta [Mrs. Rob. Hamilton]. Patricia. N. Y,, Putnam. c. 3+438 p. D $1.35 n.

Partly because she loves success and partly because she needs the money, the heroine of this story accepts the offer of a publishing house to incorporate in a biography of her father the indiscreet letters of a diplomat, which set forth without restraint the full text of matters that should never have been committed to writing. When the manuscript is irrevocably in the publishers' hands and an international sensation is promised by its publication, she meets the son of the man whose reputation she has sold behind his back. She falls in love with him and goes through deep waters but comes out strong and happy, holding her lover's hand.

French, Mrs. Anne Warner [Mrs. C: Ellis French]. The taming of Amorette; a comedy of manners; with il. by Clarence F. Underwood. Bost., Little, Brown. c. 7+210 p. pls. D $1 n.

Amorette was a thorough flirt, and when she married Geoffrey Girard she made him promise that she might still be as nice as she liked to other men. A number of other men came around; but this modern Petruchio had the sense to be clever instead of brutal —and his success can be gaily applauded.

Comedy in which the reader is told the secrets, so he can have all the fun from the beginning: he sees Mr. Wilbur's initial mistake about the army officer who had married the Sue Courney; he knows that the other young officer (an honor-medal man) owns the Philippine mining stock that Magnate Rutherford wants to control; and he grins while Wilbur and the magnate gratuitously assist at the elopement of this same young officer and Miss Rutherford.

Gallichan, Wa. M. Women under polygamy. N. Y., Dodd, Mead. c. 13+356 p. (4½ p. bibl.) il. pls. pors. O $2.50 n.

In surveying polygamous marriage, book gives much information on the history of the institution in general. Finds the chief causes of primitive polygamy to be economic (valuing women for their productive labor) and political (the craving for dignity and many possessions). Inquires into the difference between Eastern and Western women's point of view, and concluded that marriage "has always taken the form demanded by the mass of the people"; and that even monogamous society is as yet in the early stages of ideal sex-love.

Harvey Porter, a fugitive from a reformatory, found a haven at Brunel's Tower, a Devon pottery. His cleverness and ingratiating manners quickly placed him in the good graces of the master George Easterbrook and his daughter Joanna. Harvey's devotion to the master soon amounted to worship and believing that the end justified the means used a crooked method for obtaining a manufacturing secret of a rival pottery. Expecting to be praised the young man was almost crushed when Easterbrook angrily turned him away from Brunel's Tower. Later, Easterbrook tempered his judgment, but when the future looked brightest for Harvey, a tragedy came.

Porter, Harold Everett [Holworthy Hall, pseud.]. Pepper. N. Y., Century Co. c. 316 p. D $1.30 n.

Pepper is the middle name of the chief character—one James P. McHenry, a Harvard undergraduate and a chap of resource and romance. Pepper also describes the book and the doings of McHenry's special friends. It is full of "larks" and slang, watchful of athletic records, and interpolated by irate male parents who are not willing to leave academic ones to the registrar.

Pratt, Lucy. Felix tells it; with il. by Gordon Grant. N. Y., Appleton. c. 355 p. D $1.25 n.

Roused to literary action by being told that he is "slow for his age," and that Macaulay wrote a history when he was only eight, Felix writes a book himself. He decides that many books have been written about "The child" and "its nature," but that nothing at all about "Fathers and mothers" or their natures. This will be his job, then. He goes to it very honestly, and the result in print is decidedly amusing.

Putnam, Nina Wilcox. The little missioner; il. by E. C. Caswell. N. Y., Appleton. c. 321 p. pls. D $1.30 n.

An American love story of to-day, whose heroine lives in a small village. Mary has been imbued from childhood with the idea that her life's work is to be in the missionary field. She suddenly finds her enthusiasm in village affairs wonderfully quickened by a party of cousins from the city, who take a summer cottage in the little out-of-the-way place. One of them, determined to reform the prevailing educational conditions, goes into politics. Mary's zest for the conversion of the heathen pales before her interest in John's victory at the polls.

The United States Secret Service never had a more puzzling mystery to solve than BM432. In following a strange clew, Alan Jensen, of the service, went to Little Babos Camp in the Province of Quebec to "await a messenger from the North." Here he encountered, in the pursuit of his duties, an ill-assorted company, which included a most alluring specimen of young womanhood. Jensen's surprise changed to amazement when the suspicion grew upon him that the girl was concerned in a stupendous plot which threatened the very independence of the United States. How this alert young Secret Service man, torn between love and duty, helped to thwart the conspiracy and be rewarded by his government and the "siren," makes the story's climax.

Stevenson, Burton Egbert. Little comrade; a tale of the great war. N. Y., Holt. c. '14 '15 315 p. D $1.20 n.

A young American surgeon, leaving the congress at Vienna last summer, finds himself under suspicion incident to German mobilization. In Aachen a beautiful Alsatian appropriates him as her husband. She is trying to reach France with important information, and needs a passport more than anything else in the world. The situation, as it developes, is delightful and convincing; Stewart, true to the American man chivalry, has the time of his life; the girl is absorbed with her high mission. When they reach Belgium, the girl gives Stewart the letters, she has been wounded, and so he must carry them to General Joffre. Later they are separated in a skirmish. Stewart pushes on to headquarters, and in anguish of heart does what the brave lost friend had trusted him to do. . . . On her cot, in a German field hospital, his "little comrade" lies patiently, sure that sometime, somewhere, they two would meet again.

Plot develops from the ambitions of William Stuyvesant's dishonest junior partner. Thomas Burnett plans to marry Ruth Stuyvesant, meantime playing on her brother's extravagant double life. When the bank theft is discovered, Burnett kills the elder Stuyvesant, and managed to convict Billy Reid as the murderer. Reid has been Ruth's accepted admirer, and they are secretly married. Reid makes a dramatic escape from Sing Sing. Burnett is forced from one desperate crime to another, trying to destroy evidence. He is at last caught. The governor's pardon reaches the fugitive couple in Mexico, and brings their married life to a happier chapter.

Considers that to-day the United States is an integral part of the international structure, and that a foreign policy is now necessary, and that such policy must be ready to meet the European victor in his inevitable attempt to gain Latin-American trade. Discusses the difficulties of a Pan-American federation, the maintenance of the Monroe Doctrine, the pros and cons of armament, and infers that the United States would become a second-rate power were she to disarm, at this time, in the interests of universal peace.

"History of DeKalb County, Tennessee," by Will T. Hale. 12mo, cloth, 254 pages and 12 full-page illustrations. $1.25 net.

The manners, customs, habits, pastimes, farming, merchandising, education, religion, slaves, stage coaches, taverns, wars of Revolution, Indian, Confederate and Federal, regular and Guerilla, Loyal League, Ku Klux Klan, story of the Mound Builders, etc., are all interestingly discussed. The full names of over 600 families, with descendants, are given; names of all the early settlers, names of all the soldiers who are buried there, of the Revolution, war of 1812, Indian Campaigns, and War with Mexico. Enlistment rolls of all the Confederates and Federals raised in this county. These appear in no other history, as they were photo-stated from the original records in Washington, where they were secluded. This was done by special permission given to Mr. Hale by the Secretary of War.

Mr. Hale is the author of "History of Tennessee and Tenneseeans," in 8 vols.; "Indians and Tennessee Pioneers," "Backward Trail," etc.

Spring Books of Note

THREE NEW VOLUMES IN THE SPELL SERIES

The Spell of Southern Shores

By Caroline Atwater Mason, author of "The Spell of France," etc. A sequel to THE SPELL OF ITALY, which is, perhaps, the most successful travel book of recent years.

The Spell of The Holy Land

By Archie Bell. In which the author graphically pictures the country and historic monuments of the Holy Land.

The Spell of Flanders

By Edward Neville Vose. The record of a Twentieth-Century Pilgrimage in a Sixteenth Century Land, just before the outbreak of the great War.

Each volume illustrated, boxed, net $2.50

On Sunset Highways

By Thomas D. Murphy

"Every loyal American should have a copy of this revelation in American scenery, this proof that he who has not seen America first has little business abroad, and is unequipped for comparisons."—Chicago Banker. Illustrated in color and in duogravure, boxed, net $3.00.

From Page's List

Kultur Kartoons

By Will Dyson. With a foreword by H. G. Wells

To pierce with the pencil of the caricaturist to the * * * core of the Prussian Idea and to illuminate the vanity of its pretensions has been the object of Mr. Dyson in this collection of cartoons. A noteworthy contribution to the art of the War. Net, $1.00.

The Proving of Virginia

A sequel to "The Fiddling Girl," by Daisy Rhodes Campbell. This new story continues the career of "The Fiddling Girl" and takes her through three years of college life. An advance opinion on the manuscript: "Just a line to tell you that the book is finished. It is great! I think THE PROVING OR VIRGINIA far ahead of THE FIDDLING GIRL—and that certainly was a charming and uplift story—which is saying much for the new book." Illustrated, net $1.25.

Alma's Senior Year

A Sequel to "Alma's Junior Year"

By Louise M. Breitenbach

This is the fourth volume of the "Hadley Hall Series" and will prove welcome to the thousands of girl readers who have come to regard Alma Peabody and Hadley Hall as real. Illustrated, $1.50.

The Princess and The Clan

By Margaret R. Piper, author of "Sylvia's Experiment: The CHEERFUL Book."

A delightful story for young people, wholesome and uplifting. It is written in a style that will appeal to the interest of all readers—old as well as young—if they are "young of heart." Illustrated, $1.50.

CLASSICS IN THE FRENCH LANGUAGE

This series is representative of the best French literature, consisting of over 100 volumes, and the works of the most celebrated writers are steadily being added.

The books are pocket size, printed from large, clear type on good white paper and artistically bound in cream-colored cloth, with French designed cover stamp, fancy end papers and jacket in colors.

Victor Hugo's Works

In addition to the above we have also the complete works of Victor Hugo in 51 volumes, uniform in style with the other volumes of French classics.

Colección Espanola Nelson

CLASSICS IN THE SPANISH LANGUAGE

In this series are published copyrighted works of well-known contemporary authors, also a selection of the best works of the Spanish classics, and translations of contemporary French and English works, made by distinguished writers.

The volumes of this series are printed with the greatest care, from large type on fine paper, and bound in library binding, in special cloth, with frontispiece, and cover illustrated with an engraving, and are of convenient size.

These volumes in French and Spanish are being used as text-books by a number of schools and colleges, in their courses of modern languages, and should be on the shelves of every college supply store.

THERE IS NOTHING MORE EXASPERATING

Than to find a number of typographical errors in a completed book. Our proof readers are human, and consequently not infallible, but here are some of the things that have been said about them:

"Many thanks . . . for well read and corrected galleys. I found only one error to correct; something unusual in my experience with former printer."

"The proof just received is remarkably clean."

We might quote more of the same nature—and we may, later on.

Export Bookseller and Bookbinder
Agent in Paris for American Booksellers and Bookbinders

We beg to inform our American customers, that notwithstanding the great bereavement which has befallen our firm, by the loss of our Mr. JEAN TERQUEM, who died for his Country, in September last, at the battle of the Marne, our business will continue under the same name, and under the management of directors, most of whom have been connected with our firm for a number of years, and were trained to our special trading lines, by the late Mr. EM. TERQUEM, senior.

We hope that our customers will continue to favor us with their esteemed orders, which will receive, as usual, our best care and special attention.
